

SAFER LIFTING

Icelandic company Ecoprocess launched the Thorbjorn electric bin lift for trade waste and recycling collections at RWM

last week. The semi-manual single chair with an electrically operated comb lifting device for trade waste containers can be fitted to standard rear end loaded RCVs. According to Ecoprocess, the bin lift's benefits include being fast and lightweight, virtually silent, reducing fuel consumption and features to improve worker and pedestrian safety.

UK sales manager Scott Young (right in picture with marketing director Guðjón Árnason) said: "Bin lifts need no longer be seen as a dumb, dangerous yet necessary device, but as a valuable tool in providing important operational information critical for making strategic decisions, and helping to create a safer, more productive working environment."